Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.
The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.
As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair
The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

A SONG OF THE SEA.

A sweet, still night of the vintage time,
When the Rhone goes down to the sea;
The distant sound of a midnight chime
Comes over the wave to me.
Only the hills and stars o'erhead
Bring back dreams of the days long dead,
While the Rhone goes down to the sea.

The years are long, and the world is wide,
And we all went down to the sea;
The ripples splash as we onward glide,
And I dream they are here with me—
Lost friends whom we all loved so
In the old mad life of long ago,
Who all went down to the sea.

So we passed in the golden days,
With the summer down to the sea;
They wander still over the weary ways,
And come not again to me.
I am here alone with the night wind's sigh,
The fading stars, and a dream gone by,
And the Rhone going down to the sea.

LAURA'S BEAUTY.

Her golden hair was floating on the breeze,
Or twisted into many a trace-love knot;
And measurelessly bright the beams that shot
From those soft eyes, whose light no more one sees.
Perchance 'twas but a lover's fantasie,
Yet seemed I in that vision fair to trace
The lineaments of more than mortal grace,
What wonder that I bowed to charms like these?
She seemed no denizen of lower earth,
But some bright visitant from spirit sphere,
Her silvery voice, in sorrow or in mirth,
Fell like an angel's whisper on the ear,
So did I recognize its heavenly birth—
So owned my stricken heart that sovereignty dear.

Select Story.

A YOUNG WIDOW.

"Rub the horse down and don't feed him until he is perfectly cool."

These words were addressed to the hostler of a hotel in Brighton by a handsome, middle aged gentleman, dressed in the height of fashion, as he alighted from an elegant black horse and tossed the rein to the attendant.

"And now," said the horseman, addressing the waiter, "show me to a private parlor."

A well-dressed man, who rides a handsome nag, is always sure of a welcome at a public house all the world over. Our friend soon found himself in a neat parlor with flowers and vases on the mantle piece, and the blinds carefully closed—for it was a summer afternoon—while the open window permitted the free current of air to circulate through the apartment. The waiter remained standing near by the door.

"Any orders, Sir?"

"No—yes, stay; who came in that handsome phaeton I saw standing in the yard?"

"A lady, sir."

"Ah!"

"A young widow."

"Bah!"

"She is very handsome."

"Go along and shut the door after you," muttered the traveler, testily.

"A young widow," he soliloquized; "I am glad I don't know her, I am certainly very fortunate to have attained the age of forty without any feminine attachments. Peculiarly independent—not ill-looking, I think I must admit—I should make what those busy bodies—match-makers—call a grand catch. But thank my stars, I have happily preserved my content and independence so far, and I am not likely to succumb now. No, no! Jack Champion was born to live and die an old bachelor. And now for the newspaper."

In the meantime another horsemen had come to the hotel, his horse reeking with sweat and literally unable to place one foot before another. The same hostler now made his appearance.

"Pat," said the fashionably-attired young man, "put my mare in the stable and do the best you can for her."

"Och, Mr. Traverse, and she's kilt entirely."

"I am afraid so."

"And what the devil made you crowd her so?"

"No matter. Is my sister here?"

"Yes, sir. Show the gentleman into the ladies' parlor."

"Ah, Belle, you are here," said the young man.

"Yes, but what's the matter with you?" said a beautiful young woman rising to meet him.

"Nothing, Belle, nothing."

"Something is certainly the matter. You look flushed and excited."

"That's not all."

"Oh, tell me what has happened?"

"I must be brief, for I am pursued."

"Pursued!"

"Yes. You know that fellow who insulted you in the coach," said the young man. "Well I have been on his track for more than a week. I met him to day in the street and gave him a confounded good horse whipping. I handled him very roughly, I'm afraid. He instantly got a warrant against me, and not wishing to be dragged into court until I was ready, I mounted my horse and gave the officers the slip. Perhaps I had better waited and braved it out; but having taken this step I'm bound to baffle them. To-morrow I will surrender myself. Now, Belle, if your pony will take me to your uncle's in five minutes, I'm your man."

"Poor Charley could not do it," answered the lady.

"Then I will make other arrangements. By the-by, I'll meet you at the villa."

From the drawing room the young man rushed into the stable.

"Pat," said he "give me a horse—a good one."

"Sorra the horse we've got in the stable except the black, and he belongs to a gentleman who came here just before ye. Ouch, but he's a good one, yer 'anner—2:40 to a cut."

"I'll borrow," said Traverse, jumping on his back. "Tell Belle to drive the gentleman to the villa, and he can have the horse again."

"But yer 'anner!" remonstrated the hostler.

In vain; Traverse had put spurs to his horse and was off like a thunderbolt.

"O, wirra, wirra; what'll become of me? I'm ruined entirely."

Shortly after Mrs. Leslie rang for her phaeton, and at the same time Mr. Champion, the old bachelor, rang for his horse. The pony came round to the front door, at the same time the young woman stepped into the phaeton.

"All right," she said to Pat, with a smile, nodding and taking the reins, "Give him his head."

"Och, it's all wrong," replied Pat, keeping a tight hold on the rein.

"Your carriage can take two inside?"

"What do you mean?"

"O, wirra—your brother has been stealing a horse."

"Stealing a horse?"

"Yes, this gentleman's, and he said you were to take him to the villa, to get him back again."

"Very singular," said the widow, "but William was always a little eccentric."

At this crisis Mr. Champion appeared.

"Is my horse ready?"

"Jump in sir."

"I didn't come in a carriage."

"In wid ye," shouted the hostler.

"Take a seat beside me, Sir, if you please," said the widow, with a facinating smile.

Mr. Champion approached the step to inquire the meaning, when the hostler seized him with a vigirous hand and thrust him into the phaeton, while the pony, startled by the movement, started off on a run.

Poor Capt. Champion! Here was a situation! A confirmed old bachelor abducted by a fascinating young widow. The captain had to lend his assistance to the young lady in managing the pony, who was shortly reduced to his slow and quiet gait. For his assistance, Mrs. Leslie told him in a few minutes he should be in possession of his horse, which had been borrowed by a gentleman. This was all the explanation she had vouched. She required in return to be made acquainted with the name of her companion, after her own. In a few minutes the captain began to be some what at ease—in fact he began to like his position. He had never sat so near a pretty woman in his life, and he asked himself whether if the proximity was so pleasant for a few moments, a constant companionship might not prove as agreeable. While her attention was engaged in her pony, he had an opportunity to survey her features. Her large, dark and luminous eyes seemed to be literally swimming in their liquid lustre. Her cheeks were as soft and blooming as the side of a peach. Her profile was strictly Grecian and her parted lips showed a row of pearls. The most delicate tapered fingers encased in French kid, closed upon the reins, and the varnished tips of a dainty boot indicated a foot that Cinderella might have envied.

"Do you live far from here, madam?" said the captain.

"Not very far. The pony can mend his pace if you are in a hurry."

The widow turned those bewitching eyes of hers upon the old bachelor and smiled.

It was all over with him. When he sprang out at the villa and touched the hand of the widow as he assisted her to alight his heart was irretrievably lost.

A red faced old gentleman, in a dressing gown, received them at the door.

"My friend Capt. Champion," said the old gentleman. "Walk in—warm day."

"Very," said the captain.

And, indeed his looks seemed to corborate his statement, for he was as red as a peony.

The captain and the old gentleman were chatting familiarly and the former felt himself completely at home. After an hour was spent in this manner his host excused himself and the old bachelor was left alone.

A dreamy reverie was interrupted by the sound of voices in the hall. The captain easily recognized the widow's, and a glance through the half-open door showed him that her companion was a handsome young man.

"There, dear Bella," said the young man, "don't scold any more. I won't do it again. Give me a kiss."

A hearty smack followed. It was a veritable, genuine kiss, the captain saw and heard it. A pang shot through his heart.

"The only woman I could ever love," said he to himself, "and she is engaged."

The widow tripped into the room. If she was pleasing in her carriage dress, she was perfectly bewitching in her drawing room attire. Champion could now see the whole of that fair foot.

"My dear sir," said she, "your horse is at your service now."

Champion rose.

"But," she said, "if you will stay and take dinner with us my uncle will be very much delighted, and I shall be highly pleased."

"The coquette!" thought Champion. "I am much obliged to you, madam, but I have an engagement," he said.

"Then we cannot hope to detain you sir, but you must allow me to present to you my brother."

The fine young man made his appearance and shook hands with the bachelor.

"That's the horse thief, captain," said the widow, laughing.

The young man apologized and explained the circumstances which had impelled him to take the liberty.

"I am sorry," he added "that we can not improve the acquaintance casually made by enjoying your company at dinner, I am sorry you are otherwise engaged."

"Why, as to that," said the captain, drawing off his gloves, "your offer is too tempting, and I feel compelled to accept it."

So the horse was remanded to the stable, and he stopped to dinner. After dinner they had music, for Mrs. Leslie played charmingly. Then he was persuaded to stay to tea, and in the evening secured ten minutes tete a-tete with the widow, in the summer house, overgrown with Maderia vines, and inhabited by a spider and six earwigs.

It was 10 o'clock when he mounted his horse to return to Boston, but it was bright moonlight and he was quite romantically inclined.

The next morning he repeated his visit, and the next—and the next. In short the episode of the borrowed horse produced a declaration and acceptance, and though years have passed away, the captain has had no cause to regret his ride with the widow in the pony phaeton.

Ely's Cream Balm is the only catarrh remedy of many I have tried which has acted as a cure. I have been troubled for over fifteen years; my head has been most of the time stopped and very much inflamed. It has opened my nostrils and reduced the inflammation. My eyes are improving, so that I can stand strong light, which I have not been able to do for years. Nathaniel Fegley, with E. F. Montz, Merchant, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

My case is similar to the above, and would recommend the remedy, (Cream Balm) to all sufferers from Catarrh. H. H. Rodman.

Ely's Cream Balm sells better than any other preparation for Catarrh, and gives better satisfaction, B Armstrong, druggist, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The Romance of a Tramp.

During the Centennial year, among the thousands of persons who went through the Capital building one day in July was a tramp named George ——. As he was passing down the steps, after an inspection of the building, he stumbled and fell, breaking his arm. A Capital policeman picked him up, and after preparing a cot sent for a surgeon, who set the arm. This over, the tramp asked the privilege of sitting around in the Capital Park until he got strong enough to go about again, saying he had no money and knew that habitual loungers were liable to arrest on a charge of vagrancy. The desired privilege was granted, and, in addition, an arrangement was made by which he was given a comfortable sleeping place in the building. The officer also managed to bring enough food from his boarding house to supply him. In about two weeks the tramp gave notice that he would start west. He was exceedingly thankful for the kindness shown him by the officer, and said if he ever got half a chance he would endeavor to repay it. The tramp met a Centennial tourist from Salt Lake City, who happened to know his father. After talking, the tourist offered to take him west, if he wanted to go. The offer was accepted, and the Capital policeman, Arthur Thomas, went to the depot with them and bade them good-bye.

Now let four years pass, and the rest of the story comes in. Arthur Thomas, who was a Capital policeman in 1876, is now, and has been for more than a year, Secretary of Utah Territory, having been appointed by President Hayes on recommendation of a number of leading men, Republicans and Democrats. Some weeks since a man named George —— entered Mr. Thomas' office in Salt Lake to ascertain something about the boundaries and survey of certain sections of some mineral lands. They recognized each other and had a long talk. The tramp had prospered. Beside having a wife, he can draw and have honored his check for $100,000. Everything he has touched since he has been in the territory has turned into money one way or another. The ex-policeman and the ex-tramp can be seen strolling about Salt Lake any afternoon, and the wives of each are equally inseparable.

A Plucky Woman.

SHE KILLS A BIG BEAR AND CAPTURES A COUPLE OF CUBS.

Some days since a farmer's wife in Grayson county, whose name we have not obtained, was frying meat for dinner at her house, situated near a mountain range in a rather wild and sequestered place, her husband in the meantime being engaged at work some distance from the house. The savory odor of the bacon was scented by a couple of young bears that were ranging on the premises and enticed them to follow the direction from which it came. They kept the scent until it even drew them into the house where the meat was on the fry. The lady of the house secured the strange visitors, and her knowledge of bears led her to think that these young ones had strayed from their maternal parent, which would soon follow their trail and hunt them up. She was right, for it was but a few moments before the old she bear came in sight—an enormous black bruin, of a kind which, as many of our readers know, will fight to the death for their young. The woman drew from its rack the old true, tried and trusty mountain rifle that had perhaps served on similar missions to that which it was about to be called, many times before, and fastening the door, she made a loop hole of the window and waited the approach of her bearship within a sufficient distance for a shot. She waited not long and fired, the ball taking effect, but not proving fatal. The report of the rifle drew the laboring husband from his work, who, coming near the house, was chased several hundred yards by the bear, which then gave up pursuit and returned in quest of her young. The plucky backwoodsman's wife had in the meantime reloaded the rifle, and with the second shot the old she bear keeled over, underside topmost, and "yielded up the ghost." The cubs were sold at Independence, the county seat of Grayson for $26, and the skin of the bear which was very large, brought the sum of $8 at the same place.—Whytheville (Va.) Enterprise.

The Fox's Advice to the Hare.

One day a fox discovered a fine chance to capture a pullet for his dinner, the only drawback being the fact that the farmer had set a trap just in the path which any depredator must travel. In this emergency the hungry Reynard hunted around until he found a Hare and after a few remarks on the state of the weather, the scramble for office, the Whittaker investigation and the Turkish question, he said:

"I was just thinking, as I overtook you, what impudence some folks have."

"How?"

"Why, I met Miss Pullet a short time since, and she boasted of being able to out-run you.

"The brassy creature!" exclaimed the Hare. "Why, I can run as fast as she can fly!"

"Certainly you can, but she's doing you great injury among your friends by her stories. If I were you I'd see her and warn her that this thing must stop."

"I'll do it! I was built for speed, and everybody knows it, and I won't have any Pullet boasting that she can outrun me. Come along and show me where she is."

"Well, I'll go as a special favor to you, of course," humbly replied the Fox, "and to show Miss Pullet what the Foxes think of the Hares I will let you take the lead and I will follow in your footsteps."

As they neared the coop the Hare began to arrange a little speech of greeting, but he soon had other fish to fry. He walked into the trap with his eyes wide open, and ere he had recovered from the shock the Fox had secured his dinner.

"Say! Say! I'm caught!" yelled the Hare as he struggled with the trap.

"So I observe," was the reply.

"And what is your advice?"

"To get away as soon as you can!"

Every neighborhood scandal has three lies to one truth. No person becomes a talebearer except to forward some scheme of his own. When a fox is anxious to preserve the reputation of a hare look out.

STUDENT BURGLARS.

A STRANGE TRAGEDY IN MASSACHUSETTS—ONE OF TWO BROTHERS KILLED.

On Wednesday morning of last week, Abiel Wilson who lives in North Andover Mass. was awakened by footsteps in his house. Soon after, his chamber door was burst open by two persons and Wilson discharged a rifle, shooting one of the intruders. Both fled, and Mr. Wilson arose from his bed. He found bloody finger-marks on the plastering at the west window, about 120 feet from the house, and behind a stone wall was found the dead body of Arthur Foster, a student at Phillips Academy. He had been shot in the left arm, the ball passing into his chest and through his heart. A few minutes afterward Luther Foster, twin brother of the killed burglar, appeared and confessed that he and Arthur had conspired to rob the house. He said his brother fell dead after jumping from the window, and that he dragged his inanimate form to the place where it was found behind the stone wall and then called his brother-in-law and told him of the affair. Luther was placed under arrest and taken to Lawrence, where he was locked up. On the floor of Mr. Wilson's room were found a revolver, a box of pepper, and a heavy iron poker making it evident that it was the intention of the young men to resort to violence to gain possession of Wilson's money. The young men's parents reside in North Andover, near Georgetown, and are among the most respected people in the town. Both boys previous to this affair bore excellent reputations, were industrious and frugal, saving their earnings in order to secure an education. For two years they have attended Phillips Academy and are well spoken of by their preceptors. They were twins and twenty one years of age. In an interview with Luther at the Lawrence Police Station the prisoner said:

"About three weeks ago my brother pursuaded me to attempt the burglary. We went to the house, and my brother went in, I remaining outside. He came out in a few minutes, and we went away, getting nothing that time. Last night he spoke of it again, and said he was going to make a raise of some money. I tried to get him not to go, but he persisted, and I went along. We removed a pane of glass and a nail, raised a window and went in. This was about 1 o'clock. My brother went up stairs and I remained below, sitting on the stairs, when I fell asleep. After awhile my brother came back and refused to go away. He again went up stairs and I followed him. This was about 4:30 o'clock. We stood at the door a few minutes and my brother put his shoulder against it and pushed it in. As soon as the door opened I saw the flash and my brother fell. I ran down stairs and jumped out of the window, my brother following me, falling as soon as he got out. I raised him up and spoke to him. He was gasping and did not answer. I got him over the wall and laid him under a tree, where he died in my arms almost immediately. I then went to my sister's, Mrs. Gould's, got her husband up and got him to go with me. I also roused Mr. Nelson, who went and brought an officer who arrested me. I am twenty one years old and a twin brother of Arthur. We were in our second year at Phillips Academy. I never attempted anything of the kind before."

His statement agrees with the statement of Mr. Wilson, who says he heard them about 1 o'clock and laid awake until 4 o'clock, when the door was forced open and he fired.

Further investigation shows that Arthur Foster on completing his studies at the Phillips Academy intended to enter Andover Theological Seminary. Mr. Wilson had in his room $75,000 worth of stocks, bonds and other securities. Both boys had previously been in Wilson's employ and had no difficulty in passing the watch-dog on the premises.

It is believed that the twins were concerned in previous burglaries at Wilson's house, and it is hinted that evidence has been secured to show that they were the thieves who last week blew open the safe at the Boston and Maine depot, from which $60 was stolen. Wilson has not been arrested and it is not believed he will be.

The "Year Without a Summer."

We continue to receive occasional inquiries concerning the "year in which there was no summer." Some persons appear to have a wrong idea as to the time. It was the year 1816. It has been called the "year without a summer;

LEGISLATIVE FOLLY.

The members of the Legislature are doing their best to convince the people that they are not worth ten dollars per day, whatever may be their legal right to that stipend. The early days of the session were wasted in the selection of an United States Senator to suit Mr. Cameron, and the past two weeks have been thrown away in wrangling over petty resolutions to annoy Attorney General Palmer and State Treasurer Butler. The important public business has been suffered to languish and now, after a hundred days have passed, the really vital questions presented are still unsolved. For all this folly there will undoubtedly come retribution at the hands of disgusted constituents and many of the honorable gentlemen who have displayed so much energy regarding their pay and so little as to anything else, will not return to Harrisburg in the capacity of lawmakers.

The only dignified way to test Mr. Palmer's construction of the law is to carry the matter into Court, and have it decided by proper judicial authority. This would not interfere with the transaction of public business deserving attention, and would tend to preserve some feeling of respect for the members. Up to this date the sympathy of the community is with the Attorney General, as the resolutions adopted have shown too clearly that they were inspired by revengeful motives. The law-makers of a great Commonwealth ought to be above such petty maliciousness, and the sooner they understand that the people think so, the better it will be for them and for their further continuance in political existence. It has been repeatedly demonstrated of late, that the long-suffering and patient public can adopt strong measures when necessary, and cast aside with scant ceremony their negligent and unfaithful servants. Wise men flee from the wrath of the tempest, but fools remain to defy it.

THE DEADLOCK.

Senators Conkling and Cameron are mainly responsible for the present disgraceful state of affairs in the Senate. They are making a dangerous experiment in trying the patience of the people so persistently. There is a general feeling of disgust in the community, not only at the interruption of business but also at the shameful scenes that have recently been enacted in the Senate chamber. It is bad enough to have the members of the lower House abuse each other like pothouse politicians, but it is infinitely worse when grave and dignified Senators descend to the same level. In the shameless squabble for petty offices all the great interests of the nation are forgotten—the President's nominations are neglected, the Courts compelled to adjourn for want of proper officers to attend to cases,—and all decency is laid aside in the contemptible wrangle. The Republican Senators decline to accept the offer made by the Democrats to go into executive session, and insist that the petty offices of the Senate shall be first decided. The bargain with the renegade Mahone is first to be consummated and the rights of the people are made a secondary consideration. There must be a speedy end to this deadlock if the President's administration is not to sink into contempt. Mr. Conkling, in his obstinate resentment has placed Mr. Garfield in such a position that he cannot afford to yield. If Judge Robertson's name is withdrawn or if he is rejected by the Senate, Mr. Garfield's claims for the support of the people will be small indeed. It will be a virtual inauguration of Conkling, as Chief Magistrate. The friends of Mr. Garfield assert that he is a strong and able man, fully competent to conduct the affairs of the nation with honor and consistency. If the claim be true, now is the time to prove it. So long as this Senatorial squabble continues, so long will the Administration lose prestige. It is a matter of very little moment who are the officers of the Senate, provided they are not chosen in pursuance of a disgraceful bargain, but it is of the greatest importance that necessary public business be transacted, and in a decent manner. Scores of Presidential nominations need to be acted upon without delay. In one case at least, an United States Court has been forced to adjourn because a District Attorney has not been confirmed. This entailed great annoyance and expense upon hundreds of interested parties to suits.

There is no room left for doubt as to the alliance of the Republicans with Mahone, the Repudiator. Why else should such a man as Riddleberger be named for office? He is of the same political faith as Mahone and even more ultra in his views. The Republicans strenuously deny all affiliation with either of these men, and yet Senator Cameron stated openly in the Senate that the fight was not for the offices, but to affect the coming election in Virginia, and, presumably, with the aid of Mahone and his henchman. The peppery little Repudiator denies that he has made any bargain with the Republicans, but in the face of such facts, how is he to be believed? If the Senate has any wish to preserve even a semblance of decency, this unseemly deadlock will come to an end at once.

IMPEACHMENT.

The Harrisburg Patriot is very anxious to have the Legislature impeach the State Treasurer for refusing to pay the members ten dollars a day in disregard of the Attorney General's opinion. It is perhaps possible that the members in their present condition of wrath, might push through an impeachment and remove the Treasurer, but they would not be sustained by public opinion. The average citizen does not deem the refusal of the Treasurer sufficient to warrant such grave proceedings. The Attorney General is the highest law officer of the State government and the one to whom heads of departments would naturally apply for an opinion regarding the affairs of their respective offices. If the Attorney General and the Treasurer are wrong, let the Courts so decide and that will end it. There will be no great loss of time nor interruption of legislative duties, in submitting the matter to judicial settlement. The Legislature will command more respect by passing the more important bills on the calendar, than by "breathing out threatenings and slaughter," against the State officers for acting, as they think, in compliance with law. More work and less talk is what is needed.

DEATH OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.

A telegram from London, dated April 19th, stated that Lord Beaconsfield died at 5:10 o'clock that morning. The morning bulletin announced that he had been restless for some hours, and during the day his strength gradually diminished. At 10 p. m. it was known that he was sinking. At 5 a. m. the bulletin read as follows: "Lord Beaconsfield's physicians regard his present symptoms as giving grounds for more grave anxiety than at any period during his illness." A few minutes afterwards he died.

He was conscious up to a late hour last night, when weakness brought on delirium and he sank into a stupor. He recovered consciousness, however, just before he died. Lords Rowton and Barrington and Drs. Quain and Kidd were were with him when he died, and hundreds were waiting in respectful silence in the street. The news was at once telegraphed to the Queen and to all the ministers and leading men of both parties.

Though the death of this remarkable man was not unexpected, it will nevertheless send a thrill through every civilized nation on the globe. He was one of the foremost men of the century and has borne a conspicuous part in shaping the destinies of the great nation he so ably represented.

Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield and Viscount Hughenden, was the son of Isaac Disraeli the author of several literary works, and was born in London on the 21st of December, 1804. He studied law but soon tired of the legal profession and devoted himself to literary pursuits. In 1826 he published his first novel, "Vivian Grey." When thirty-two years of age he was elected to Parliament as a representative of the borough of Maidstone, having previously been twice defeated.

His first speech in Parliament was a failure, and was shouted down by the members. He closed with the following words: "I am not surprised at the reception I have experienced. I have begun several times many things, and I have often succeeded at last. I shall sit down now, but the time will come when you will hear me." And indeed it was not long before he was heard, for in 1839 he made a speech which was listened to with profound attention.

Up to this time he had published, besides "Vivian Grey," a satire in one volume, entitled "The Voyage of Captain Popanilla," his second society novel; "The Young Duke," a novel called "Contarini Fleming," a psychological autobiography; a glittering oriental romance, "The Wondrous Tale of Alroy," "The Rise of Iskander," founded on Scanderbeg's revolt against the Turks in the fifteenth century; the political writings, "What is He?" "The Revolutionary Epic," "The Crisis Examined," and "Vindication of the English Constitution," embodying his political views; the sarcastic and pungent articles in the Times signed Runnymede; the love story, "Henrietta Temple," and the novel, "Venetia," in which Byron and Shelley figure. He afterwards published "Count Alarcos," a Spanish tragedy, "Coningsby," "Sibyl" and "Tancred." In 1840 he became the leader of the Conservative party.

In March, 1852, when Lord Derby was at the head of the administration, Disraeli was made Chancellor of the Exchequer and a member of the Privy Council. The same year he went out of office with Lord Derby, in December. After Lord Palmerston's downfall in February, 1858, he again became Chancellor of the Exchequer under Lord Derby, who was succeeded in June of the same year by the Palmerston-Russell Cabinet. During this administration, as well as during the Russell-Gladstone Ministry, he led the opposition in the Commons. He again became Chancellor of the Exchequer under Derby, in 1866, his chief political action being his support of the Reform bill, signed by the Queen August 15, 1867, extending the right of suffrage to all householders in a borough and to every person in a county having a freehold of forty shillings. The Earl of Derby resigned in February, 1868. Disraeli then became Prime Minister, which post he retained until December, 1868, when he was succeeded by Gladstone. In 1870, he published "Lothair," which reached a circulation of 80,000 copies in this country. The peerage offered him in 1868 he declined for himself, but he accepted it for his wife, who became Viscountess Beaconsfield. He became Prime Minister again in February, 1874, after the resignation of Gladstone by whom he was again succeeded on the 28th of April, 1880. Soon afterward he was created Earl of Beaconsfield. His wife died Dec. 23, 1872.

The family Disraeli settled first in Spain and then in Venice. Benjamin Disraeli came to England in 1746. He married in 1765 Sarah Villareal de Seproot, by whom he had one child, Isaac Disraeli, the father of Lord Beaconsfield.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The citizens of New York, in their efforts to inaugurate a monster fair, have not very favorably impressed the country at large. There is an evident indifference on the part of wealthy men and corporations, that has had a chilling effect, and it begins to look as if the project would fall through. Gen. Grant, who was made President of the Fair Association for the purpose of attracting capitalists, scented danger and resigned his position to accept one with more of profit and, possibly, of honor. The Central R. R. Company who would have made millions had the Fair become a fixed fact, offered but a meagre sum, whilst the Pennsylvania R. R. Company proposed to give $125,000, although their profits were problematical. As New Yorkers are fond of boasting of their generous expenditures, business activity and dash, their apathy as regards so great an undertaking and one that would so greatly redound to their honor and profit, is peculiar to say the least. The people of Pennsylvania, looking back on the great Exposition of 1876, may be pardoned for a cynical smile at the tribulations of their brethren in New York

Senator Cameron's Legislature ought to pass some resolutions condemning the inconsiderate men who held Senator Cameron's coat-tails the other day when he started for Senator Ben. Hill. A man ought to have the free use of his own coat-tails on an occasion like that and if Senator Cameron's fine frenzy had not been violently discouraged he would have put down the rebellion in about two minutes. Such untimely restraint as was put upon the young Senator's coat-tails cannot be denounced in terms too severe. This duty belongs to the Legislature.—Phila. Times.

In the State Senate on Tuesday last, a resolution was adopted for an adjournment on the 19th of May. On the same day the House refused a second reading of the resolution and referred it to the Committee on Ways and Means. The free pipe line bill passed the House finally, as did also the bill for an additional supply of Small's hand-books.

Senator Cameron having said of the Pennsylvania Legislature that "no nobler, better or more patriotic body could be found in the world," it is now in order for the statesmen at Harrisburg to do something handsome for the Senator. A resolution to the effect of "you're another" would be about the thing. The people can then contemplate the members of the House in hot pursuit of Attorney General Palmer, and Mr. Cameron's dignified demeanor in the Senate, with equal feelings of admiration and respect.

The rush for office in Washington is greater at the present time than has ever been known before. Senators, members, cabinet officers and the President are overwhelmed by applications and their time consumed by applicants. This would seem to indicate that there is an unusual number of unemployed men and women in the country, or else that they consider the work in a government office to be lighter and better paid than can be obtained elsewhere.

It seems to the Independent Republican of Montrose "that the correct course for the Legislature to pursue is to transact all important business as speedily as possible and then adjourn. If the new salary bill passes there will be no occasion for a decision as to the constitutionality of the old law, as it will stand repealed."

Senator Dawes, of Massachusetts, has been most prominent in defending the alliance between the Republicans and Mahone, for which noble work the New York World thinks he is clearly entitled to the distinction of being the thickest-headed member of the Senate of the United States.

NOTIONS OF THE FIRST SETTLERS.

Mr. W. H. H. Amidon, one of the first settlers in the town of Gilmantown, Wis., and one of the most industrious and hard working men in the county, has been very severely troubled with rheumatic pains during the past few years, so much so at times, that he was disabled from performing manual labor. Learning of the wonderful cures effected by the use of St. Jacob's Oil, he procured a few bottles and experienced immediate relief. Many others of our acquaintances have used it and express themselves as highly gratified with the relief it has afforded them. This king of medicines can be bought everywhere.

A TREASURY BALLAD.

Here's to Butler of Chester who stands at his desk
A-bowing and smiling all day,
Receiving the Solons who come to him oft
And evermore speak of their pay.

(Their pathetic complaint and appeal to the said Treasurer, here followeth:)

Do you think we can come from the bleak, stormy North,
From the West where the smoke hides the day;
From great Philadelphia, or Delaware's shore,
For less than ten dollars a day?

We know our own worth and we know our own price
Nor care what the scoffers may say,
We want not the learned Attorney's advice,
But what we do want is our pay.

The wild Wolfe may rage 'mongst the lambs of the House
And Hewit his gavel may play,
But who cares a rush whether school keeps or not
So long as we've plenty of pay.

We've not been at home more than half of the time
While the session has glided away,
And no one shall say we hav'ent worked hard
And earned our allowance of pay.

Boss Cameron declares that an honester band
And a nobler, exists not to-day
And with an indorsement like that in our hand,
How can you deny us our pay?

So Butler, dear Butler, Schell out to us now,
And make our hearts grateful with pay;
Then "safe duty bound"—according to form—
For your lasting salvation we'll pray!

Too many persons are careless about destroying the stamps on cigar boxes and several arrests have recently been made in this Collector's district. The penalty for neglect is a fine of $50 and this is imposed without regard to the number of cigars the box may have contained. The Government is annually defrauded of large sums by the illegal use of stamps a second time. Many who are innocent of all desire to commit an offence contribute thereto by negligence, in permitting cigar boxes with stamps not defaced to pass into the hands of dishonest men.

The people of Plymouth begin to feel some alarm concerning the contamination of the river water by the sewage of Wilkes-Barre. The Record does not think the water is purified by a flow of two miles and asks, "Is there to be no consideration for us? Have we no rights the corporation of Wilkes-Barre is bound to respect,"

Colored eggs were plenty in this town on Easter day, and the children were as happy as the proverbial larks. The dyes recently introduced are much superior to those heretofore used, and the colors given to eggs are brighter and more even.

Vennor, the weather prophet, predicts that the ground will be covered with snow on the first of May, though there will be warm weather before that time. There will be one more cold snap in April. Under such depressing prognostications it becomes a matter of doubt whether it is worth while to discard winter clothing before the fourth of July.

On the 10th of March last William Mowry, an old citizen of Catawissa, committed suicide by drowning in the river at that place. Last Saturday afternoon the body was discovered floating in the water at Fisher's Ferry, seven miles below Sunbury. Friends at Catawissa were notified and they went to Sunbury and took the corpse to Catawissa in a wagon. Mr. Mowry was about 73 years of age and it is said that his suicide was caused by worry concerning money matters.

On Monday evening next, Mr. Robert J. Burdette, the well-known humorist of the Burlington Hawkeye, will lecture in the hall of the Y. M. C. Association, Berwick, on "The Rise and Fall of the Mustache." We advise all our readers to hear this lecture, if they can do so even at the cost of some inconvenience. They will be amply repaid for their attendance, as the lecture abounds in wit and humor, interspersed with gems of poetic thought and dainty bits of word-painting. Mr. Burdette is a genial, frank gentleman who makes friends everywhere and the quaint and humorous conceits of his lecture are such as bubble up and overflow in his ordinary converse. We know of no more pleasant way to spend a couple of hours, than to listen to the fun and fancies of Mr. Burdette.

David Pritchard, son of William Pritchard of Light Street, left Bloomsburg some years ago and went West. For two years past he had been engaged in coal mining near Jackson City, Michigan, and was prospering in business. On Wednesday the 12th inst. whilst at work in the mine, he was struck by an iron bar that protruded from the carriage in the shaft, and received such injuries as resulted in his death a few hours after. His body was brought here on Saturday in charge of three gentlemen who were his partners in the mining company. The funeral took place on Sunday and the remains were interred in the old Lutheran church-yard. Rev. Thomas Pritchard, a brother, was among the mourners at the funeral. Mr. Pritchard died in the very prime of life having only attained the age of thirty years.

BUCKHORN NEWS.

BUCKHORN, April 19, 1881.

A pleasant evening was passed at the residence of Seth Shoemaker on the 16th inst., it being the occasion of Miss Kate's birthday. A bountiful table was spread and several fine presents tendered as tokens of their appreciation of the object of this surprise.

Mr. Mate Rounsley of Shickshinny was in town on Sunday.

Mr. Jno. Laubach moves near Rupert on the "Quick" farm. He will be missed here.

Miss Anna Savilge is sick with scarlet fever.

William Ivey Sr., has been confined to his house for the last week.

Mr. J. Grimes was in town on Saturday, looking after his interests. Mr. Grimes has many warm friends here, where he was a successful teacher.

BERWICK NOTES.

April 20th, 1881.

Burdette, of the Burlington Hawkeye, will lecture next Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, on the "Rise and Fall of the Mustache."

W. H. Snyder, County Superintendent, was in town on Monday, paying the schools a visit. He expressed himself well pleased with the schools. He will soon leave an office in which he has rendered energetic and efficient work.

Trailing arbutus is reported in bloom by the lovers of wild flowers.

Notwithstanding the fact that overcoats were comfortable yesterday, and the winter snow was yet visible on the mountain side, the progressive young American was discovered bathing in the canal above town, avowing in stuttering accents that the water was nice and warm, "not a bit cold."

The machine shop building is to be torn down and a larger structure of brick put up instead.

Mr. Scott, of Wapwallopen, and family, are boarding at the St. Charles, while their house is undergoing repairs.

On Monday a young man by the name of Bruce Hess, an employee of the Jackson & Woodin Manufacturing Co., had his right leg broken in two places, by a fall of heavy lumber upon him.

At the Literary Society last Saturday evening, was discussed the question, "Should a military spirit be encouraged in the United States." The affirmative was led by W. E. Smith, and the negative by H. L. Fress. The judges' decision was in favor of the former. An essay by Mr. Trescott and an impromptu address by Rev. Kumler made up the programme for the evening.

REPORTER.

Mr. John Morehead, of Espy, son of Rev. John Morehead, formerly of that town, has been appointed station agent of the D. L. & W. R. R. to take the place of the late Henry W. Aul. Mr. Morehead had been in the employ of Mr. Aul for some time, and fully understands all the duties of the position. He is courteous and obliging and will be a favorite with the traveling public.

A correspondent of the Williamsport Banner who writes over the name of "Councilman," contributes an article, presumed to have been written with humorous intent, relative to an opinion recently delivered by Judge Elwell in the matter of peddling oysters. If the Councilman in question will reserve his fund of wit and humor until the 5th of May, it may stand him in good stead. Williamsport Councilmen are already the objects of mingled derision and contempt and should frown down all efforts on the part of any of their number to place them in a worse predicament.

Do not be in haste to discard your heavy clothing, especially underwear. April weather is very deceptive and the bright sunshine of one day affords no criterion of what the temperature may be at the end of twenty-four hours. At no season of the year is there greater likelihood of catching colds, or more difficulty in getting rid of them. It is better to suffer some inconvenience and discomfort from the warmth in the middle of the day, than to lay aside overcoats and Winter clothing and thus invite sickness. In this latitude it is safe to wait until the first of June before making final disposition of Winter wear.

A PACIFICATOR.

Half a dozen "fried" in a box is a capital pacificator when you come home late, but when your wife or other members of the family have bilious fever or colic, Spring Blossom is better. Prices, $1; 50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents.

Jacob Miller, of Espy, is agent for the Syracuse chilled steel plow, one of the best made. It is the only one in the world with a forged steel beam, steel jointer and a steel wheel standard. He is taking a large number of orders. Call on, or address him at Espy, Pa.

Benjamin Zarr Sr. died on Wednesday night at his home in Catawissa. He had been in failing health since last Fall. Mr. Zarr was the father of our townsman, B. F. Zarr, Esq. At this writing, the time for the funeral has not been announced.

An ineffectual attempt was made by burglars last Friday, to force open the safe in the store of I. H. Seesholtz, Catawissa. The drill broke after a hole had been bored in the top of the safe and the attempt was abandoned. The thieves got away with money and goods valued at $25.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. H. Rogers, of Allentown spent Easter with her parents.

E. W. Drinker, now residing in New York spent Easter Sunday at home.

William Lowrie, for many years the obliging operator of the Western Union Telegraph Company in this place, has gone to Illinois to visit his brother.

TOO COMMUNISTIC.

Philosophers sagely declare, without reservation or stealth,
That the source of true happiness here is an equal division of wealth;
But the doctine is too communistic, laying it on a lit le "too thick."
Better far is a bottle of Spring Blossom to take whenever you are feeling sick.
Prices, $1; 50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cts.

There are few indeed who attain to eminence as public readers and the majority of those who essay the role achieve but indifferent success. There are many reasons why so few give satisfaction, and these include lack of ability to comprehend the meaning of their authors, an inflexible or badly trained voice, and insufficient study. To read aloud seems an easy accomplishment, but in reality to read well is the result of long and patient labor, even when coupled with natural powers. Prof. Homer D. Cope who read, or rather recited, the drama of "Damon and Pythias" at the Opera House on Tuesday evening possesses a clear, strong voice and has a most intelligent conception of his lines. His memory is suprisingly retentive, and he used neither book nor notes. To recite a drama in which there are several widely divergent characters to be represented, and to keep each in its proper place through various acts and scenes is no light task. Prof. Cope did this successfully and afforded much pleasure to his hearers. His recitation was very well worth hearing as those who were present will readily admit.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

A special meeting of this body was held on Wednesday of last week, to confer with the Water Company regarding the water supply for the town. All the members of the Council were present as were also Messrs. R. C. Neal, E. H. Little and H. J. Clark of the Company. A particularly lively discussion ensued, in which more attention was paid to force of expression than to elegance of diction. Personal opinions were given with perfect freedom and the debate was at one time acrimonious. The Company's bill of $800 was finally passed and the matter of annual compensation was brought up. A proposition to furnish water to the town for $1200, per annum was voted down, and the Council adjourned until the following Monday.

On Monday evening all the members of the Council were in attendance and the same representatives of the Water Company.

The petition of sundry citizens for the opening of Pine Alley to East Street was agreed to. This matter will come before the Court for a formal decree.

Permits were granted as follows: to Dr. Schuyler to unload stone &c., on Market Street, and to Charles Krug for the erection of a building on Main Street adjoining that of W. C. McKinney, and for an addition to Dr. Turner's building near the railroad station.

Mr. R. C. Neal then addressed the Council concerning the water supply and stated that the reductions of insurance on town property would aggregate some $6,000. He gave the estimates made by various insurance agents in corroboration. Mr. Neal's remarks were brief and to the point. After giving the cost of improvements, he made a proposition for the Company, to furnish water to the town during the year for the sum of $1500, and urged the Council to take immediate action.

Mr. C. W. Neal moved that the offer be accepted. Mr. Hartman seconded the motion and made an earnest speech in favor of the proposition. Mr. Lockard thought the price too high. Mr. Correll believed the offer to be as liberal as could be made. Mr. Herring thought the price extravagant.

A vote was taken and the proposition was defeated, Messrs. Hartman, Neal and Correll voting aye, and Messrs. Lockard, Hassert, Rabb and Herring, nay.

Mr. Neal then proposed to give $1,350, but this was lost by a similar vote. Mr. Hartman suggested $1200, and this was adopted by the following vote: Hartman, Neal, Lockard and Correll, yea: Hassert and Rabb, nay. By a like vote it was agreed that payments be made monthly, to date from April 1st. This is subject to the action of the Water Company. The meeting then adjourned.

At a meeting of the Water Co., held on Tuesday evening last, a resolution was passed, accepting the proposal of the Council to furnish water for $1200. This was done in the belief that, when the people appreciate the advantages securing to the town, they will insist on their representatives paying "a fair and living price."

EASTER SERVICES.

Elaborate preparations for the celebration of the resurrection of our Lord, were made at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and on Sunday the floral display was beautiful. The chancel was filled with lilies and other flowers, and each window contained two pots of house plants. The font was surmounted by a mound of lovely cut flowers, and the whole church was filled with their delightful odors. The first service was at six o'clock, and consisted of full morning prayer with the exception of one lesson. The music was executed by the excellent quartette choir, Miss Brower, soprano, Miss Freeze, alto, P. E. Wirt, tenor, and L. S. Winterstein, bass, under the direction of Geo. E. Elwell organist. It consisted of an opening anthem, "Now let the gates of Zion ring," the Easter Anthem, "Christ our Passover," Lloyd's Te Deum and Hymn 104. The ten o'clock service was the grand event of the day. Full morning prayer was read except the Litany, and the Psalter was omitted. The following was the musical programme:

Hymn 98, "Christ the Lord is risen today,"	Warren.
Anthem "Christ our Passover."	Chappel.
Te Deum in G.	Wilson.
Jubilate.	Danks.
Hymn 100.
Responses to Commandments.	Wilson.
Gloria Tibi.	Wilson.
Offertory.	Wilson, Wirt.
Hymn 425, Alleluia Anthem.	Wilson.
Gloria Patri.	Wilson.

There was a very large congregation, and the excellent rendition of the musical selections was received with general satisfaction. At no season are the services of the church more attractive than at Easter, and the delightful music and exquisite floral decorations are in keeping with the joyous ceremonies of the day. Rev. Mr. Zahner, the rector, officiated and preached a sermon suitable for the occasion.

In the Methodist Episcopal Church the pulpit was surrounded by numbers of choice potted plants, beautifully arranged and presenting a most attractive appearance. Rev. Mr. Donahoe, the pastor, preached sermons appropriate to the day, in the morning and evening. There was a large congregation and the services were more than usually pleasant.

There were no special services in the Presbyterian church.

There was a large display of flowers in the Roman Catholic church, and the services were of the most interesting character. The congregation was of good size.

A GOOD ENDORSEMENT.

The well known Missionary, Rev. G. Horsford, writes: "I have been greatly afflicted with liver complaint. My doctors said I should never get over it, but hearing your Spring Blossom so highly spoken of, I thought I would try it. I am glad I did, for though I had to take nearly three bottles of it, it has entirely cured me. I should like take some back with me. What do you charge by the quantity?" Price, $1; 50 cents, and trial bottles 10 cents.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Azenith Walter wife of John Walter, of Catawissa, and daughter of the late Geo. Fredrick, died March 22nd 1881, aged 34 years, 3 months and 25 days.

Mrs. Walter was confined to her room for over seven months, most of the time to her bed. Her disease being cancer, her suffering was most intense, at times excruciating.

She was not a member of any branch of the Christian church, but soon after the commencement of her illness, she realized her need of salvation, and sought and found the Savior. From that time up to the day of her death, her trust in Christ was unshaken, and her submission and resignation to God's will seemed complete. Indeed, all who were in her room for any length of time, and witnessed her sufferings, were impressed by the spirit of patience and resignation continually manifested. Not a murmur or complaint was heard escape her lips, and as day after day she continued to decline and near the grave, she not only cheerfully and patiently bore her affliction and pain, but frequently expressed a readiness and desire to depart and be with Christ. The fear of death was now taken away, and she spoke of its approach with the utmost composure.

I think in her case, the saying of the Apostle James was fully verified, where he says, "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Her father was acknowledged as one of the most holy men that ever lived in this community, and no father, perhaps, ever prayed more earnestly for his children. It was frequently the great burden of his prayers. A short time before her death, she desired to receive the sacrament of the Lord's Supper which was administered by the Rev. J. B. Polsgrove, of the Methodist Episcopal church. She died trusting in the Savior.

The funeral services were conducted by the above named minister.

OUT OF BONDAGE

Popular Prices, 25, 35 and 50.

OUT OF BONDAGE.—At the Leland Opera House last evening, a large audience greeted the Hyers sisters. The company throughout is a very excellent one. The singing of Miss Madah was indeed a great surprise to all, her voice is clear, sweet and melodious. She handles the higher notes with comparative ease. Her rendering of the Arla Linde was superb, while the celebrated duetts from Martha was the best of the evening and carried the audience by storm. Her sister Miss Louise Hyers, in addition to her fine vocal contribution to the occasion, performed the witful and humorous spoiled child to perfection, and showed high acting talent. The contrast from the life of servile dependence to the freedom of new relations in social life, was happily exhibited, and the interest of the audience was sustained throughout the entire performance.—Albany Argus.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 when I was taken with a Violent Bleeding of the Lungs followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have for three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it so that every one afflicted with diseased lungs will be induced to take Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles, and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work. Sold by druggists. Take Wm. Hall's Balsam only—Beware of counterfeits. oct.15-1y-ow

The History of the Potato.

The potato has a curious history. It is a native of the elevated valleys of the Andes in Peru and Chili, and is found as far north as Mexico. It was taken to Spain soon after the discovery of the American continent, and was cultivated in gardens as a botanical curiosity. The tubers being small and not edible in its wild state, it attracted no attention. In 1586, Sir Walter Raleigh introduced it in England, and is credited with bringing it from Virginia; but of this there is no evidence. Its cultivation in the cool, moist summers of Ireland soon developed large tubers, which were found to consist chiefly of starch.

A successful experiment was made in the use of the tuber as food, but this was met and combated by a number of learned men, and several works were written and published to prove its poisonous character. It belongs to the great Nightshade family (Solanaceæ), all of which are poisonous. This indictment was true, but they had not yet learned that a poisonous plant may bear a fruit of a tuber not only harmless, but very nutritious. This prejudice prevented the use of the tomato till within the last forty years. The truth is, both of these vegetables being of the Nightshade family, are poisonous in stem, leaf and flower, but this property does not extend to the tuber of the one nor the fruit of the other.

While on this subject, it is proper to say that solanine—the poisonous principle of this family, is sometimes developed in the potato even to a dangerous extent. If the tubers, while growing, are uncovered, so as to expose them to direct sunshine, they will assume a green appearance and become poisonous from the presence of solanine. The same effect in a minor degree, is produced in the sprouting of potatoes. If these are used in cooking they should be sliced and placed in cold water an hour or two before being cooked. Otherwise sprouted potatoes are unwholesome food.

The potato is a tropical plant, but its tuber-producing quality is a northern modification of the plant, and in this quality it is improved by the cool summer of the north, and is successfully cultivated to the Arctic circle, and with a decided improvement in the quality of the crop and generally in its yield. The crop is sometimes injured by the intense heat of July and August, even at the fortieth degree of latitude. The tendency of the tuber to degenerate in warm climates will suggest the precaution of occasionally renewing the crop by planting northern potatoes.—Indiana Farmer.

The Culture of Corn.

The name corn in England is applied to all grains, as we think it should be; and our Indian corn is there called maize, a name used only with respect to this grain, and hence leads to no confusion. In its cultivation no crop is better understood by our farmers as a rule, and yet none so well known formerly varied so much in the modes of cultivation. Forty years ago—and it is sometimes done now—the ground was plowed, then harrowed two or three times, then cross plowed and then the rows struck out in the direction of the first plowing. Now, generally, this mode is abandoned, and there is only one plowing before the rows are marked out, and the seed is dropped by a planter, which separates the grains in the hill much more uniformly than when dropped by hand. Three stalks are the limit for a hill, but it very frequently is reduced to two. The distance between the hills and the rows ranges from three to three and a half feet, the yield being about the same, though it depends, like every other crop, upon the extent of the manuring and cultivation.

Of late years the drill system has been adopted by a good many farmers, but it does not seem to increase in favor; rather the reverse. It is not disputed that a little additional yield may be obtained from the system; but it is at an increase cost of hand labor, so that in the end there is no gain, if any, worth mentioning. Where the extent of the crop is small it probably possesses some advantage, but we do not think otherwise.

Latterly the crop has been planted earlier than formerly—say the last week in April—for the reason that in case of failure to come up from rotting by a cold, wet soil, there will be plenty of time for replanting. But this will scarcely stand, inasmuch if planting is delayed from the 5th to the 15th of May, the ground will soon have become warm and the excessive moisture disappeared. Besides the 15th of May is none too late for putting in the crop. In fact, we regard it as better than an earlier date.—Germantown Telegraph.

Setting Out Currants and Gooseberries.

Both the currant and the gooseberry do better to grow from cuttings than from the roots. The wood of last year's growth must be taken, cut it into pieces from eight to ten inches in length, and insert about half the length in the usual prepared garden soil, press the ground firmly with the foot, mulch, and there will be no danger of not growing. Set them where they are desired to remain permanently. If a small tree and not a bush is preferred, cut out all the eyes entering the ground. If a bush, let the eyes remain. We prefer the bush for two reasons, the first is, more is obtained; the second, it is longer lived. In fact the bush will live half a century, only requiring thinning out of the wood once in a while. As to currants we prefer decidedly the old Dutch Red. It is not so large as some others, but it bears as abundantly and is less acid and of better quality. Of gooseberries, we prefer the Downing. It is of good quality, an excellent bearer, and has never mildewed upon our premises.—Germantown Telegraph.

Rolling Grain in the Spring.

If farmers would look at the theory of rolling the wheat and the rye fields in the spring, it would be resorted to much more frequently than it is. Occasionally the winter and spring have been so favorable to these crops as not to render it necessary. But in three seasons out of four it is necessary, and doubtless adds considerably to their productiveness. The thawings and freezings of the ground, thawing or spewing out of the roots, and exposing them to the drying winds of February and March, very seriously affect the grain. Passing a roller over as soon as the soil is fit to go upon, presses back the roots into their beds, and gives them a fair grip again upon the support on which the crop must depend. This must be apparent to every one who will look at its operation. We have no doubt that rolling over fields, which have been badly thrown up by the frost, would also have a most beneficial effect.

When the season comes round when the work is to be done, it is best to call attention to these things, or it will pass and the advantages be lost.—Germantown Telegraph.

An Extraordinary Woman.

Mrs Easter Yates, known locally as "The Amazon of the Plattekill,' died in Plattekill, Ulster county, N. Y., a few days ago. Physically she was built more like a woman than a man. Her shoulders were broad and her muscles well formed. During the winter Mrs. Yates cut cordwood on the mountains, and, in the language of the countryman, "It took a purty good man to swing an ax along side of her." On several occasions she cut as many as three cords of wood in one day, in addition to performing the household duties in her home after sunset. In the summer she cut grain for the farmers, and was rated as a "good hand." She cultivated a small garden of her own, selling her products in Newburg. She made weekly trips to that city, carrying her truck in two large baskets. Farmers going to town to ship their hay on the barge line would offer her a ride, and her invariable reply was: "I am in a hurry; it will take you all day to get there." She could easily outwalk any team with a load behind them. Six years ago a horse, while passing her house, fell and became fast in the harness. The driver and several other men could not succeed in getting the animal loose. Mrs. Yates lifted the horse up bodily, but in so doing fractured her leg. The bones in the injured body never knit. Though suffering much pain, her daily employment consisted in chopping kindling wood on a block while she sat in a chair in front of her house.

QUICK AND SURE.

Many people drag themselves wearily about from day to day, not knowing what ails them, but with failing strength and spirits, feeling all the time that they are steadily sinking into their graves. If these sufferers would only use Parker's Ginger Tonic, they would find a cure commencing from the first dose, and vitality, strength and cheerfulness quickly and surely coming back to them, with restoration to perfect health. See advertising column.—Tribune.

What Common Sense Does.

Common sense is symmetry of mind, of character, and of purpose in the individual combined. It represents man in completeness, harmony and equipoise. It clothes him with dignity, invests him with power, and stamps him with superiority. It is not genius, for that is often erratic; nor cunning, in its sinuous course; nor tact, with its decline into trickery. Common sense is the embodiment of true manhood. It confers a patent of royalty, though by birth plebeian, and exalts men from their lowliest spheres to the highest stations. Not by sudden freaks of fortune or a train of adventitious circumstances are they thus dignified; but step by step, through obstacle or hindrance, they overcome by force of character and the proper force of will power. Common sense is a tremendous force in this lower world. Its power is felt and acknowledged through all the ramifications of governments, society, business, finance, science and commerce. In fact it is the history as well as the true philosophy of the ages. It is the salt that has saved humanity from barbarism, and the moving power that has propelled the race onward in its march of progress and civilization.

SET BACK 42 YEARS.

"I was troubled for many years with kidney complaint, gravel, &c.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about; was an old worn out man all over; could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood and kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72, and I have no doubt it will do as well for others of my age. It is worth a trial.—(Father.)—Sunday Mercury.

Prince Pierre Napoleon Bonaparte, whose death is announced, was a son of Lucien Bonaparte, Prince of Canino, a brother of Napoleon I, and was born at Rome, September 12, 1815. He passed his youth as an adventurer in America, Italy and Greece; and committed several homicides. After the coup d' etat of December 2, 1851, and the restoration of the Empire he received the titles of Prince and Highness. In 1871 he shot a journalist named Victor Noir, and attempted to shoot Ulric Fouville, in an interview held in the Prince's house. For this he paid a fine of $5,000. Prince Pierre was the author of several literary works, the chief of which is a French metrical version of Nicolini's tragedy, "Nebuchodnoser," 1861. He was appointed an officer of the Legion of Honor in 1864, and the same year received from King Victor Emmanuel the Grand Cross of the Order of SS. Maurizio and Lazzaro.

MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM. OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure

For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, a relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new blood and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach.

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the Law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sent by mail in the form of pills, also in the form of Lozenges, on receipt of price, $1.00, per box, for either. Mrs. PINKHAM freely answers all letters of inquiry. Send for pamphlet. Address as above. Mention this paper.

FIRE-PROOF SAFE.

THE ONLY EIGHT FLANGE SAFE MADE IN THE WORLD.

AND CONTAINING OUR

Patent Inside Bolt Work,

Patent Hinged Cap,

Four-wheel Locks,

Inside Iron Linings,

Solid Iron Corners,

LATEST FROM MAINE.

Lock's Mill's, Oxford co, Me.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Gents:—On the 22nd of November, 1879, our spool mill at this place, 50x65, two stories high, was totally consumed by fire, in which there was a large quantity of spool lumber, spools and blocks, all seasoned. The fire burned for three and a half days. We had one of your safes in our mill and Tuesday morning following, eighty hours after the fire, it was too hot to handle, being covered with burning blocks. Some time after it was opened and the contents were in a good state of preservation, not a book or paper being destroyed. I am satisfied with your safes and have purchased another, and can cheerfully recommend them to any one wishing to secure their valuables from being destroyed by fire.

Yours truly, I. G. TEBITS,

TREMENDOUS TEST.

Roasting Thirty Hours in a Bed of Red Hot Coals.

Corning, N. Y, January 6, '81.

Morris & Ireland Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—On the night of the fire in our village on the 26th ult, I had in use one of your No. 8 Safes. I am pleased to inform you, after the floor gave way it fell into the cellar, into a heap of burning coal, where it roasted for thirty hours. Our citizens and myself gave up the loss of any thing being saved in it. On being taken from the ruins I was happily disappointed to find my cash, vouchers and other articles of value perfectly preserved. The combination works well now. I am satisfied your new and improved work, one of which, a No. 20, I have ordered of your agent to-day, will afford absolute protection in any fire.

Truly Yours, E. S. BARNES.

STILLEAD.

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 10, '80.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland:

Dear Sirs:—In the disastrous fire which took place in this town Nov. 30, the Morris and Ireland safe in my store was subjected to a severe test, being thrown into the cellar and a huge mass of debris fell upon it, and it was in the ruins some two days. I take pleasure in informing you that upon examination it was opened without trouble and the contents were found to be unhurt. I cheerfully recommend your safe and should I want another I should certainly purchase one from you.

Yours truly, G. W. LOWE.

STILL ANOTHER.

From the Great Fire in Troy, New York.

Troy, N. Y., December 11, 1879.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gentlemen:—After witnessing the charred books out of the safes opened, also one of my own which was another make, which was lost in the heat of the fire like the No. 6 lately purchased of you, which was in the fire over forty-eight hours, and had to be continually played on during Monday night, as it was completely surrounded with burning muslins and other inflammable material, on opening it in the ruins Tuesday afternoon, I was pleased to find the contents, books, papers and money were all preserved in a remarkably good condition. With this proof of the fire qualities of your safe we have given your agent an order for one No. 8 safe.

Yours respectfully, DAVIS & CO.

THE GREAT

BOSTON FIRE.

JANUARY, 1880.

Morris & Ireland's Safes Again Triumphant. Messrs. Rice, Kendall & Co's. Large Safe Reveals Its Valuable contents Intact, after being subject d to intense heat for One Hundred and Thirty Hours.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

Messrs. Morris & Ireland, Boston:

Gents:—On the night of December 28, last, the building occupied in part by us at No. 81 Federal street, and which was four stories high and about 200 feet deep, caught fire and was destroyed, with all its contents, consisting of a very large stock of paper, book binders' materials and other merchandize. While several other large buildings adjoining ours were burned at the same time, the flames were extinguished the following day, but our stock continued to burn for days thereafter. After a delay of 120 hours we were able to have our safe dug out from the ruins and opened, and were pleased to find all the contents saved. The safe contained about our most valuable books, papers, policies, etc., and we now feel sure that our judgment was correct in buying one of your safes, which we decided to do after knowing the wonderful record of your sales in the great Boston fire of '72. We regard the protection of your safe as most remarkable, and this fire is a guaranty of its security to those who may wish to purchase.

Yours very truly, RICE, KENDALL & CO.

Also a Communication from Ex-Governor Alex. Rice.

Boston, January 2, 1880.

MESSRS MORRIS & IRELAND.

Gents: I have made careful examination of the contents of the safe purchased of you some years since by the firm of Rice, Kendall & Co., and which was subject to the test of enormous heat in the great fire of last Sunday night. I regard the security of the safe under the circumstances as most remarkable. None of its contents were burned, nor were any of them so injured by heat as to be materially damaged. I should commit any securities to your safe hereafter with additional confidence. With great respect, yours very truly,

Alexander H. Rice.

THE LATEST YET.

BUT THE SAME RESULT,

So. Norridgewock, Me., Feb. 1, 1881.

Messrs Morris & Ireland, Boston Mass:

The safe I bought of you last October was in a two-story wooden building, which burned Jan. 25. The building took fire in the night, and the safe, building and its contents, fell into the cellar upon a pile of dry wood, making a hot fire which lasted for ten hours. The outside of the safe was heated red hot. It melted the handle and dial off the door. The contents consisted of watches, jewelry, silverware, books papers &c., all of which came out in good condition. Papers lying against the inside of the safe were not injured. The safe shows for itself what it is, and I feel well satisfied with what it has done. Please write what you can allow for it toward a new one, as I oblige,

O. F. HALL.
